Taste

The food can be sour (like a lemon),
sweet (like sugar),
bitter (like Fernet) and
salty (like smoked meat or bacon).

Some meals, such as curry are hot or spicy;
the others are mild (= not spicy or bitter).

If you put a lot of sugar in your meal, it becomes sugary and if you add some more, the meal is sickly, which means it is so sweet it makes you sick.
Savoury meal is a good meal. It is pleasant, slightly salty or with herbs.

You can also use tasty in this meaning.

On the other hand tasteless food is not for eating.

There is one other word connected with taste – bland. A bland meal is without any taste. Like boiled rice, for example.

Greasy food is not good for us, because there is too much oil or fat.

Fatty meat also contains a lot of fat; therefore it is better to use lean meat, which is without fat.

We should always use fresh vegetables.

In winter we have to buy canned or frozen ones.

Fattening food includes for example sweets. It makes you fat.
